Description of the research project on which the post-doc researcher will be engaged:

The research project will focus on the identification of molecules that can be used as innovative and safe biopesticides in agriculture. The researcher will be involved in the extraction of molecules with pesticidal activity from plant matrices (Carlina acaulis and Acmella oleracea). The compounds being researched will be polyacetylenes and N-alkylamides respectively and the objective will be their extraction using innovative techniques. The project will involve the development of innovative and eco-sustainable purification methods, such as molecular distillation. The researcher will also focus his research activity on instrumental analysis methods to chemically characterise the products obtained. The project will also include the chemical synthesis of derivatives starting from the previously extracted molecules, with the aim of implementing their efficacy and safety profiles. The research activity will involve the development and optimisation of innovative formulations, such as formulations with biocomposite materials, to ensure an efficient sustainable release of the extracted and/or synthesised products, and an improvement of their efficacy. The research activity will also focus on the evaluation of the biopesticide activity of the compounds on harmful insects and pests of agricultural crops and stored products. Particular attention will be focused on the control of the phytotoxicity of the developed products as well as on the toxicity on non-target organisms. The compounds will also be tested in vitro and in vivo for the evaluation of their safety profile.

Profile of the researcher to be hired:	Young researcher with a background in Chemistry, Biochemistry, or Biology and with previous research experience in Parasitology (with particular regard to vector-borne parasitoses) and/or in the use/synthesis of insecticides.

	Description of the research project on which the post-doc researcher will be engaged:	Recently, in the molecular entomology laboratory of Unicam, we have demonstrated some associations between the mosquito microbiota and resistance to current insecticides used for vector control. Some bacterial genera have been found in strains of Anopheles gambiae (one of the major malaria vectors) resistant to permethrin. In particular, in mosquitoes of the genus Anopheles (malaria vectors) and in mosquitoes of the genus Aedes (vectors of viruses such as Zika, Dengue and Chikungunya) we have characterized bacteria that produce Pyrethroid Hydrolases potentially responsible, at least in part, of the resistance mechanisms. While the notion that components of the microbiota play a role in mosquito insecticide resistance mechanisms is now accepted, little is known about the biochemical pathways through which these mechanisms operate. Through a comparative metagenomic analysis between sensitive and resistant strains of both anopheline and aedine mosquitoes, the project aims to select components of the microbiota responsible for insecticide resistance mechanisms and, through biochemical/proteomic methods after exposure of mosquitoes to different concentrations of different insecticides, to characterise the molecular mechanisms with which the selected bacteria exert their action. The results obtained may allow the synthesis of new effective and eco-friendly biocides to be used in the fight against vector diseases.

Art. 7 Work of the Selection Committee

The selection is carried out through the comparative evaluation of the candidates, and is aimed at assessing the adherence of the project proposals to the research programme, object of the same, as well as the possession, by the candidates, of a scientific-professional curriculum suitable for carrying out the research activity which is the object of the contract.

Candidates must attach all documentation necessary for the evaluation, according to the methods indicated in art. 4 of this Call.

The Committee is required to apply the principles expressed in the European Charter for Researchers on the evaluation of merit on a qualitative and quantitative level. This evaluation places emphasis on the exceptional results obtained in a diversified personal path and not only on the number of publications and takes appropriate account of teaching and supervision activities, teamwork, knowledge transfer, research management, innovation and public awareness activities.

Career breaks, aimed at conducting other experiences in public or private institutions, or changes in the chronological order of the curriculum are considered as a contribution to the professional development of researchers in a multidimensional path. Any mobility experiences or the change of discipline or sector are considered valuable contributions.

With regard to scientific production, the Committee shall express, for each candidate, in the final judgment, the degree of creativity and autonomy (as foreseen by the Human Resources Strategy for Researchers).

The Committee, during their first meeting, and in compliance with the provisions of Article 8 of the Regulation, decides on the criteria and methods for evaluating the qualifications, the project and the interview.

Furthermore, in their first meeting, the Committee must:

1. elect the President and the Secretary;
2. sign a declaration of commitment regarding compliance with ethical principles, confidentiality and the absence of situations of incompatibility.

At the end of the first meeting, the minutes containing the criteria and methods for evaluating the candidates are sent to the procedure manager, who ensures its publicity through publication on the University website.

The evaluation will be followed by an interview useful to ascertain the aptitude for the search of the candidates. The interview will be public, it may be carried out remotely, and the interview schedule is indicated in art. 1 of this Call.

Failure by the candidate to appear at the interview is considered an explicit and definitive manifestation of the will to renounce the selection procedure.

The candidates will be evaluated comparatively on the basis of the following elements:

- a) quality, originality and innovation of the project proposal, with reference to the research program being selected;
- b) relevance of the research activities previously carried out, as well as any work experience, in relation to the contents of the research program being selected;
- c) relevance of the publications attached to the research program being selected;
- d) interview aimed at ascertaining the suitability for carrying out the research activity being contracted and for the implementation of the project proposal presented, as well as the assessment of knowledge of the English language.

For the criteria indicated in letters a), b) and c), a maximum of 70 points will be awarded, while a maximum of 30 points will be reserved for the interview. The scores awarded for the criteria in letters a), b) and c) are indicated in art. 1 of the Call, and must be made known to the candidates before the interview takes place.

The Committee, after adequate and thoughtful evaluation, on the basis of the established criteria, proceeds collegially to the expression, for each individual evaluation criterion, of a reasoned opinion and the attribution of the relevant score.

Once the evaluation has been concluded, the Committee will collectively express, for each candidate, a reasoned overall judgment and the relative score.

The Committee shall draw up a rank list, taking into account the scores obtained by the candidates, and shall identify the winner of the procedure. The selection is considered passed with a minimum score of 70 points out of 100 overall.

Furthermore, in the event of a tie in scores, preference will be given to the candidate belonging to the less represented gender among those participating in the selection and, secondarily, to the candidate of younger age.

The Committee must complete its work by 12 May 2025.

Art. 8 Approval of the Proceedings

The documents of the selection procedure are approved with the Rector's Decree. The decree approving the documents is published on the website and on the University's online noticeboard, within the terms and methods established by the Call, in compliance with the principles of transparency and protection of personal data. During the approval of the documents, the person who wins the research contract is identified and the rank list is approved.

In the event of renunciation or failure to take up service or forfeiture of the winning person, the rank list may be scrolled, the validity of which is two (2) years starting from the date of the decree approving the documents..

For the needs of the same research project, it is possible to award additional research contracts to candidates usefully placed on the rank list, provided that the availability of the relevant financial coverage has been ascertained. The scrolling of the rank list must always be authorised by the Board of Directors.

Art. 9

Employment relationship and contractual clauses

The research contract has a duration of two years, and may be renewed only once for a further two years. The research contract must be signed by 15 May 2025.

Failure by the interested party to sign the contract within the terms is considered a renunciation of taking up the service, with consequent loss of place from the rank list.

The Administration, upon signing the individual employment contract, invites the interested party to present the required documentation, in accordance with current legislation.

The following must be indicated in the contract:

- a) the starting date and the ending date of the employment relationship;
- b) the main place of work;
- c) the activities related to the research project;
- d) the indication of the overall financial treatment;
- e) the indication of the methods by which the contractor is required, on an annual basis and at the end of the contract, to deposit the result of the scientific activity with the School by means of a specific report;
- f) the indication of the reasons for termination of the contract and the necessary notice periods;
- g) the indication of the reasons for withdrawal, pursuant to art. 2119 of the Civil Code;
- h) the reference to the legislation applicable to Unicam fixed-term researchers in terms of intellectual property, data processing and related confidentiality obligations;
- i) the commitment to respect the obligations contained in the University Code of Ethics.

The research contract is signed by the researcher under contract and the Rector. If the PhD or specialisation student specialist does not obtain the qualification within six (6) months from the date of publication of the announcement, he/she will lose both the right to the awarding of the research contract and the rank list.

The holder of the research contract must carry out exclusively scientific research activities that are the subject of the research contract. In the event of a request for external assignments, the School Board shall decide, taking into account the opinion of the scientific director, after having assessed the absence of conflicts of interest even in the potential form, and the compatibility of the assignment with the research activities.

Holding a research contract does not give any right to access university roles.

We also point out that, for the purposes of the overall duration of the contract, periods spent on maternity or paternity leave or for health reasons, according to the current legislation, are not taken into consideration.

Extension of research contract

Two-year research contracts may be extended up to a further year, depending on the specific needs relating to the objectives and type of project.

Any extension of the research contract must in any case respect the constraint of the maximum overall duration of 5 years, pursuant to art. 22 paragraph 2 of Law No. 240/2010.

The extension of the contract is decided by the Board of the School within the available resources and taking into account the legal constraints.

The resolution of the Board of the School must be sent at least two (2) months before the expiry of the contract to the Administration and must indicate the duration of the extension and the financial coverage methods, accompanied by the appropriate documentation.

The extension of the employment contract is signed by the researcher under contract and the Rector.

Art. 11 Renewal of research contract

Research contracts may be renewed only once for a further two (2) years.

Any renewal of the research contract must in any case comply with the constraint of the maximum overall duration of five (5) years, pursuant to art. 22 paragraph 2 of Law No. 240/2010.

The renewal of the contract is decided by the Board of the School within the available resources, taking into account the legal constraints.

The Board of Directors must authorise the renewal in a meeting preceding the expiration of the contract.

The renewal of the employment contract is signed by the researcher under contract and the Rector.

Art. 12 Incompatibilities and causes of termination of the employment relationship

Research contracts are incompatible with:

- any other subordinate employment relationship, including part-time or fixed-term, with public and private entities;
- ownership of research grants also at other universities or public research institutions;
- scholarships or research grants of any kind awarded by national or foreign institutions, except those exclusively aimed at international mobility for research purposes, including the PhD scholarship and emoluments related to the medical area specialisation contract.

Furthermore, research contracts are not compatible with attending undergraduate, graduate or master's degree courses, PhD or specialisation courses, in Italy or abroad, and entail unpaid leave for employees working in public administrations.

The holder of the research contract may carry out self-employed work or other types of external activity, including training, subject to authorisation by the Board of the relevant School, which must verify its compatibility with the performance of the research activity and the absence of conflicts of interest. The exercise of work activities, however named, not previously authorised by the University is a reason for termination of the contract.

Each of the contracting parties may withdraw from the contract before the expiry of the term, if a cause occurs which, pursuant to art. 2119 of the Civil Code, does not allow the continuation, even provisional, of the relationship, or due to supervening impossibility of performance.

Cancellation of the recruitment procedure is a condition for termination of the contract, without prior notice.

Just cause for withdrawal from the contract is either the failure to prepare the technical-scientific report or the failure to approve it by the scientific director of the research, ratified by the Board of the School.

Art. 13 Rights and Duties, and Financial Compensation

The rights and duties are those provided for by the current legal provisions regarding the legal status of the holders of the Research Contract.

The amount of the gross annual all-inclusive salary is indicated in art. 1 of this Call.

In the event of withdrawal, the salary is paid until the last day of actual service.

Art. 14 Processing of Personal Data

Without prejudice to the provisions on publication obligations by Legislative Decree No. 33/2013 and subsequent amendments and the Minerva Code, the University of Camerino undertakes to respect the confidential nature of the information provided by the candidate, pursuant to EU Regulation 2016/679.

The provision of such data is necessary to verify the participation requirements and possession of the required qualifications, and failure to provide them may preclude this verification, and therefore may lead to
