2) SCHOOL OF BIOSCIENCES AND VETERINARY MEDICINE

Research Project Title: “Italian endemic forest plants: diversity and functional traits of a biological heritage under pressure (FORENDEMICS)”

Description of the research project: Most of the plant diversity resides in the undergrowth of temperate forests, which plays a key role in the functioning of the ecosystem but is often overlooked by management policies. Italian forests are home to many endemic plants about which we have little and incomplete knowledge, ignoring the functional traits that adapt to site conditions and influence the functioning of the ecosystem. Therefore, the impacts of environmental changes on these unique species are unpredictable and can seriously threaten them. The project is based on complementary approaches at the habitat, species, and population levels, considering distribution, size, status, and ecological preferences. Endemic species will be compared with taxonomically close non-endemic ones to identify the extent and direction of functional divergences. The results will inform local policies and forest management strategies aimed at conserving this unique biological heritage of our country.

Activities to be carried out: Data acquisition and selection of target species; definition of functional traits and population characteristics; participation in field training and quality assurance procedures; measurements, sampling, analysis in individual populations of the Italian territory. Two seasonal detection campaigns, the collection of propagules, the continuous relationship with the other partners are required. Collaboration in the management and analysis of data and materials will be an integral part of the work.

3) SCHOOL OF SCHOOL OF PHARMACEUTICAL SCIENCES AND HEALTH PRODUCTS

Research Project Title: “Extraction and isolation of bioactive secondary metabolites from Carlina acaulis and Acmella oleracea”

Description of the research project: Botanical pesticides, such as essential oils and plant extracts, represent an ecological and sustainable alternative to synthetic pesticides, but their use is often limited by high volatility, rapid oxidation, and degradation due to exposure to air. The choice of botanical pesticides, as well as vectors, is crucial to develop an adequate bio-formulation, capable of acting as a pesticide. In particular, in this project, two natural products with documented insecticidal efficacy were selected as bio-pesticides, namely the essential oil of Carlina acaulis (EO) and the extract of Acmella oleracea (EX). These two plants will be extracted and their phytocomplex chemically characterized using analytical techniques, such as GC-FID, GC-MS, HPLC-DAD-MS and NMR. Their main bioactive secondary metabolites will be isolated possibly using green methodologies.

Activities to be carried out: The grant holder will have to carry out research on the optimisation of extraction and purification processes of bioactive compounds from plants of the Asteraceae family; phytochemical characterisation by GC-FID, GC-MS, HPLC-DAD-MS, NMR; encapsulation of extracts/essential oils/isolated compounds in nano formulations.

Research Area: 05 – Biological Sciences

Cost of the grant: Euro 24,000.00 (gross amount inclusive of all charges, including those borne by the organisation)

Gross cost of the grant: Euro 19,450.00

4) SCHOOL OF LAW

Research Project Title: "Intangible assets and asymmetries in European value chains: the positioning of Italian companies and sectors"

Description of the research project: The project intends to analyse the role played by intangible assets (patents and other intangible resources) in the distribution of added value, wages, and employment along the European Value Chains (EVCs), and on the contribution and technological positioning of Italian companies and industries in GVCs. On a theoretical level, the project will provide a new conceptual model for the understanding and empirical analysis of the relevance and determinants of the asymmetries of knowledge assets in Europe, examining functional specialisation of employment and distinguishing between the different types of intangible assets. The empirical analysis will use and integrate different bases starting from Inter-Country Input-Output (ICIO) and data on intangible assets provided by the EUKLEMS-INTAN Prod dataset.

Activities to be carried out: The grant holder will have to carry out a series of activities, such as the preparation of a data set on inter-sectoral economic and technological flows on a European scale and mapping of the main value chains on a European scale; mapping the levels and dynamics of technological asymmetries in EVCs through an analysis conducted at country and economic sector level; the econometric analysis on the relevance of technological asymmetries in EVCs and the extent to which the latter influence the distribution of added value, wages and employment both in the short and long term. Therefore, the need for support in bibliographic research, in the preparation of the database that will be used in the project and in the analysis and interpretation of the results, in the drafting of reports and scientific articles connected to the project, in administrative management is highlighted.

The selection procedure shall be based on the evaluation of qualifications and publications and can may be followed by an interview.

When evaluating the qualifications, the Selection Committee shall consider the doctoral degree or equivalent qualification obtained abroad as a preferential qualification.

When evaluating the qualifications, only publications and specific qualifications relevant to the research activity to be carried out and showing the level of scientific and professional qualification achieved by the candidates will be taken into account.

The interview will focus on topics related to the research project chosen by the candidate and will be aimed at ascertaining the aptitude for research and the professional capacity required for the performance of the tasks to which the selection procedure refers. During the interview, the knowledge of the foreign language requested in the Notice of Competition may also be verified.

At the end of each meeting, the Committee shall draw up a specific report.

At the conclusion of each selection procedure, each Selection Committee, based on the evaluation of qualifications and publications and on the basis of the interview, will define the suitability or otherwise of each candidate and will draw up a ranking list of the suitable candidates.

With regard to scientific production, each Committee shall also evaluate the degree of creativity and autonomy shown by the candidate.

In case of renunciation of the successful candidates before the beginning of the activity, or in case of early termination due to unjustified failure to start the research activity, the grants may be conferred to suitable candidates, according to the order of the respective ranking lists.

The Rector, by Rector's Decree, shall ascertain the regularity of the acts of the selection procedure, consisting of the minutes of each meeting of the Committee, and shall approve the ranking list, which shall be immediately effective.
